Much alarm was felt during the week over the condition of Walter W. Schouler, who is ill with typhoid fever. Latest reports are to the effect that Mr. Schouler is recovering.

Michael Walters, pickle dealer, was held in $200 in the Second Criminal court Newark, Thursday, charged with assault and battery, made by Robert Mathews of 94 Darcy Street, Newark.

A petition is being circulated, which will be presented to the Township Committee, requesting that body to grant the franchise asked for by the Suburban Traction Railroad Company and not insist on the extension of the track to Brookdale.

W. H. Hoffman of Bloomfield Avenue, procured a warrant Thursday for the arrest of Constable Charles Hummel, charging him with assault. Hummel brought Mr Hoffman a message from Newark, and because he took a little longer to write an answer than Hummel thought necessary, he became abusive and threatened to arrest Mr. Hoffman after some words had passed between them.

The funeral of Henry Taylor of Watsessing took place last Sunday and was very largely attended. There was a brief service at the house and the body was then taken to St. Paul's P. E. Church. The Rev. J. M. Williams officiated. Members of Wm. S. Pierson Post, G. A. R., were pall-bearers, and the deceased was interred with Grand Army rites.

A fee of $2 is charged for inspection, filling plumbling plan, etc. with and payable to the Board of Health, which will have control of the construction of the house drain from the curb to and within the building, according to the sanitary and plumbing code.

A Leading Dry Goods House.

The attention is called to a new advertisement that appears in this week's issue. It is that of the well-known and popular dry-goods store of L. Bamberger & Co., No. 147 and 149 Market Street, Newark. This is one of the leading stores in that city and carries an immense stock of everything in the dry-goods and fancy goods line.

Robert E. Moss, civil engineer and surveyor, is making a specialty of surveying and plotting suburban property. His office is at No. 40 Broadway, New York, or he can be seen evenings at his residence, No. 160 Washington Avenue. Attention is called to his card in the professional column.

ON THE BATTLEFIELD.

[illegible] over the field of wheat
The breath of an early spring.
[illegible] made the morning sweet,
[illegible] were carolling birds to sing,
[illegible] were children at play,
[illegible] their childish games for the day.

The sun sank over a field of red,
[illegible] no wheat nor a farmhouse there,
[illegible] ghastly lines of the dead
And blackness and ruin everywhere,
[illegible] the brook, instead of play,
[illegible] silent forms of blue and gray.

F. H. Sweet.

Wine In Bottles.

The increase of the strength of wine by keeping depends upon whether it is kept in cask or bottle. If stored in cask, there is a constant increase of alcohol. The ancients knew that wine improved [illegible] in leathern bottles, and the same result is obtained by keeping it in wooden vessels, for both leather and wood are more easily penetrated by water than by alcohol. Evaporation ensues from both, but more freely from water, and the wine consequently becomes richer in alcohol. On the other hand, the opinion that wine has grown old in bottles and therefore become stronger is thoroughly false. Evaporation is very much hindered by the cork, even when this is not covered with rosin and sealing wax. The simple explanation of our finding old bottled wine rich in alcohol is that only the stronger wines can be preserved and the weaker ones cannot resist the effects of time. At the same time, although all wine must eventually be spoiled and weakened by keeping it in bottles, yet some kinds acquire, as a last consequence of that cause which afterward destroys them, and which is neither more nor less than the chemical alteration in their constituents, properties which render them more agreeable both to smell and taste.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Uniforms to Scare the Enemy.

According to the report prepared by the war department, red uniforms were first adapted by the Emperor Valerius Maximus in order that the Roman soldiers might not be frightened by the sight of their own blood. To this day the children of England are told that this is the reason why French troops wear red trousers, and French children are taught the same notion respecting the red coats of the British. The legionaries of ancient Rome wore the skins of bears on the field of battle to make them look fierce. For the same reason they put figures of frightful beasts on their shields and helmets. From this odd custom springs modern crests and armorial bearings. The idea of scaring the enemy by such devices has been perpetuated up to quite recent times. Tall bearskin hats were originally adopted to make them look taller by the French cuirassiers, each of whom carried a handful of grenades for scattering among the ranks of their foe.—Troy Times.

Sun Spots.

It has been observed that after the sun spots have been at a [illegible] had gone with [illegible] summers are hotter, just as though [illegible] was more heat coming from the sun at such periods, and the fact has been accounted for by supposing that sun spots are caused by vast clouds of matter erupted from the sun and condensed in the surrounding space. These act as screens and prevent the sun's heat from radiating freely through them. From an examination of statistics A. B. McDowall, M. A., has found that in England during the hot summers, following the minima of sun spots, the month of August is hotter than July, an effect due, in all likelihood, to accumulation of the heat.—American Register.

The Giant Guards.

The distinction of having the greatest number of tall men in one company belongs to the First battalion of the Scots guards. The "A" or right flank company of that battalion has over 90 men on its roll, and their average height is 6 feet 2¼ inches. There are 12 men in the company over 6 feet 4 inches, and one stands slightly over 6 feet 7 inches. No individual member of the company is less than 6 feet in height.—London Court Journal.

Workmen's Tools of Moses' Time.

A collection of tools used by workmen in building the pyramids of Egypt that is owned by a famous Egyptologist indicate that many tools credited to modern ingenuity were in use when Moses was troubling the pharaohs. It is also announced that a furnace has been unearthed somewhere along the Nile in which hot blast was used centuries before the modern Neilson formulated the same idea.—Age of Steel.

It is put forward as one proof of the change of climate in England within the past centuries that fig trees bore fruit. In the Deanery garden, at Winchester, is a fine old fig tree from which James I picked fruit in 1623. At West Tarring, in Sussex, a large fig tree still stands, said to have been planted by Thomas a Becket.

An impure condition of the blood and an irritated state of the nerves which arises from it are common causes of sleeplessness. Thus it is that in disorders of the liver want of sleep and bad dreams are very common.

Louis Kossuth did not like the name by which Faneuil hall is known. Said he, "I do not like the idea that you call this place 'the cradle of liberty,' for cradle scents of mortality, and liberty is immortal."

Newton abandoned the idea of publishing several of his works for fear of criticism. They were left in manuscript and were published after his death.

Neither Gray, Fielding nor Akenside ever sat for a portrait, and their features are known to later times by pictures painted from memory.

Hardi, the great French dramatist, wrote 800 dramatic pieces between the years 1600 and 1637.

Stone Roads.

The Township Committee has only $8,000 at its disposal this year for stone-road construction. There is now before the Committee enough petitions for stone roads to use up three times that amount. A large number of the petitioners are doomed to disappointment. The Township Committee will select such streets as in their judgment are important thoroughfares and entitled to consideration. The importance of a street will be arrived at from a greneral and a local point of view. Such a street as Orchard is one that is of general importance, leading, as it does, to a railroad station. In the Montgomery district Orchard Street is perhaps of the most local importance, and where only one street in a locality can be macadamized, owing to a lack of enough money for more, the selection of such a street as Orchard would probably meet with popular approval in the district east of the canal.

In the Watsessing district the Committee has to chose between Hill Street, Willow Street, and Lawrence Street. Willow Street probably has the most righteous claim of the three.

The problem of selecting streets for macadamizing is a difficult one. Disappointed petitioners will of course disagree with the judgment of the Committee in making selections.

Letter-Carriers' Union.

About fifty-five letter-carriers from Newark, Elizabeth, Paterson, Orange, East Orange, Jersey City, Hoboken, and this town met in Hoboken on Saturday night and resolved to form a New Jersey association of postmen. Under the plan now in operation delegates to the conventions of the National Association of Letter Carriers are elected by the branches established in the various towns and cities, and the men who belong to the smaller branches complain that the members living in the larger cities have everything in their own hands. The object of the State Association will be to choose the delegates to the [illegible] of the State organization. [illegible] Branches individually, out [illegible] disputes. [illegible] errez, of Hoboken, one of [illegible] presidents of the national association, presided. The resolution adopted instructs the secretary, S. G. Hayter, of this town, to arrange for a session in Newark, Saturday evening, June 16th, when a permanent organization will be effected. One of the speakers was John F. Victory, who edits a postal journal and looks after the interests of the carriers in Washington. It is said the carriers in California, Connecticut and Massachusetts are anxious to form State leagues.

Seventeen Year Locusts.

Seventeen-year locusts have made their appearance in the Oranges. The recent heavy storms have washed them out in large numbers, and in some sections they are thickly scattered about. "Chimneys" or cones of the locust are also numerous.

The insects picked up appear to be dead, but when exposed to artificial heat show signs of life. In the region centreing around South Clinton Street, East Orange, they appeared in greatest abundance. This is doubtless due to the fact that the land in this section is not tilled to such an extent as other parts of the township.
